OUR FOREIGN RELATIONS.

[CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE.] the government and country, all express their great friendship for the government and people of the United States, and especially their fervent hope that the present administration might successfully superess the distur-bances in the portrons of the Southern States, and main-tain the Union in all its integrity.

Mr. Seward, writing to Minister Dickinson, concludes follows,—
Your instructions, therefore, will be very few and simle. Assure the republic of Nicaragua that the President Your instructions, therefore, will be very few and simple. Assure the republic of Nicaragus that the President will deal with that government jessity, fairly and in the most friendly spirit; that he desires only its waifare. Cuthivate friendly dispositions then toward the United States. See that no partiality arises in behalf of any other foreign State to our prejudice, and favor in every way you can take improvement of the transit router, speking only such faoilities for our commerce as Nicaragus can affect profitable to herself, and yield at the same time to other commercial nations. Let unpleasant memories of past differences be buried, and let Nicaragus be encouraged to rely on the sympathy and support of the United States, if she shall at any time come to need them.

EGYPT.

Consul General Thayer, in a serious as percentials his to the vicercy, says in accepting the credentials his Highness rapided that he perfectly understood and was rauch pleased with what I had said, that he welcomed has to Egypt, and heped that his relations with the United States would be as agreeable hereafter as they had been in the near.

Minister Turpin writes to Mr. Seward, July 27—The President has premised me to issue instructions to all commandants de peurto of the republic prohibiting admission of all vessels under that (the Cosneterate) lag into its parts, except in cases of distress. I could not obtain from him their complete denunciation as pirates.

The Minister for Foreign Affairs writes a note to ex-Minister Butler, saying:—

The Minister for Foreign Affairs writes a note to exMinister Rigler, saying:—

I must assure your Excellency in reply, that my govgrament, complying with the duties which it owes to a friendly State, is disposed to prevent preparations of a warlike character, or any other operations hostile to the United States, from being effected in any port whatever of the territory of the republic.
And that consequently the necessary orders will be given to the respective anthorities, to keep especial watch in this particular. However, as far as regards privateoring expeditions, which may prepare or arm themselves on the coast of thii, it might happen in many cases that the zeel and vigilance of the authorities might prove inclineations to discover them, so that it is to be desired that wintover news your Excellency might obtain on the subject, you would have the kinnoss to transmit the same to me, in order that I might, in view thereof, issue the most opportune instructions to frustrate the carrying out of such expeditions.

HAWAHAIN ISLANDS.

The government says privateers cannot be fitted out in the ports of that kingdom, nor can its ports be used as a depot for the spoils, or the prisoners made by private.rs.

The correspondence relates altogether to a daring and murderous attack in the British Legation, in Jeddo, on the 5th of July.

Secretary Seward, in writing to Minister Harris, flags.

Secretary Seward, in writing to Minister Harrs, says:—
Your prompt, earnest and decided proceedings in aid of the just decire of her Britannie Majesty's Minister to obtain adequate astisfaction for that outrage mests his emphatic approval. I have lest no time in assuring the British government directly of the willingness of the United States to co-eperate with it in any judicious measures it may suggest, to insure safety hereafter to diplomatic and Consular representatives of the Western Powers in Japan, with due respect to the sovereigntles, in whose behalf their exposure to such grave perils is incurred.

as much subordinate to the civil power as when engaged in a beliday parade in time of peace; and contraband property seized and appropriated at the military in insurrectionary districts in suppression of the rebellion is as legitimately taken as if condemned to forfolture by the judicial authorities in districts in which passing process was not obstructed. I want no other authority for putting down even this gigantic rebellion than such as may be derived from the constitution properly interpreted. It is equal even to this great emergency, and the more we study its provisions, the more it is tried in troublous times, the greater will be our admiration for the instrument and our voncration for its authors. As unpopular as the avowal may be for the moment among the thoughtless, I here declare that I am for suppressing this monstrous rebellion according to law, and in no other way, and I believe that Congress has only to discharge its duty, and the army perform its with energy and activity, to bring the war to a speedy and successful issue. We are fighting to maintain the constitution, and it especially becomes us in appealing to the passing to the reached to the tent of its rescue, not to violate it ourlaw, and in no other way, and I believe that Congress has only to discharge its duty, and the army perform its with energy and activity, to bring the war to a speedy and successful issue. We are fighting to maintain the constitution, and it especially becomes us in apposling to the people to come to its rescue, not to violate it our selves. How are we better than the rebels if both alike set at nought the constitution? I warn my countrymen who stand ready to tolerate any act done in good faith for the suppression of the rebellion, not to sanction usurjations of power which may hereafter become proceedings for the destruction of constitutional liberty. The constitution declares that Congress shall have power 'to declare war' and 'make rules concerning captures on and and water," "to raise and support armies," "to ravide and maintain a navy; to make rules for the government of the land and inval forces; to provide for calling forth the militia to execut the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions," and "to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers." Acting under these grants of power, Congress has provided for bringing into sorvice more than half a million of men, who are now engaged in suppressing the insurrection; and has, to some extent, made rules for the government of these forces, which, as far as they go, are obligatory on them; but, in the absence of any regulation as to how the army is to be used in suppressing the insurrection, its commander would be at liberty to make such use of it, consistent with the rules of civilized wariarce, as he believed must be conducive to the service of the State, and best calculated to secure the end for which it was called into being, upon the principle that every man entrusted with all the power necessary to enable him to perform the service. Hence the power of the army in the suppression of an insurrection, either by issuing writs of habeas corpus or otherwise, is apparent from the fact that and offen in a delicate question to determine that particular point, and desired in what becames the military, the constitution has left to be provided for by Congress, by declaring that it shall have power to call forth the militar to suppress insurrection; and Congress, soon after the military suppressed by combinations to powerful to be suppressed by combinations to powerful to be suppressed by an act passed at the flutt readon of the present congress, the President is authorized, in certain case, to declare the inhabitants of a State, or particularly the present of the army to suppress it. The remembling therefore, of determining when and in what districts of the Citated States the military power may be used to suppress rebellion is derived by Congress on the Eventual to the Citated authority to a more interior eventual to the control of the proverse rebellion in the control of the control of the present rebellion is derived by Congress on the Eventual to the power rebellion is derived by Congress on the Eventual to the power rebellion is derived by Congress on the Eventual to the Citate of the Citate

Probable Murder in a Broadway Concert

MAN PATALLY SHOT BY ONE OF THE FIRE ZOUAVES. Between eleven and twelve o'clock last night a man named Thomas McCormick was fatally abot in one of the Broadway Concert Salcons by one of the Fire Zouaves, named Thomas O'Brien, under the following circum stances:—It appears that the above parties met in a low concert room on Broadway, near Bleecker street, and hoth being interested in a met the method of the property and hoth principles. and both being interested in one of the pretty waiting girls in attendance, they got into a dispute, which finally led to blows, and O'Brien being considerably under the inducace of liquor drew a revolver and fired three shots influence of liquor drow a revolver and fired three shots at McCormick, one of which took effect in his right side, passing through near the heart; he immediately fell to the floor, excalaming, "I am murdered." The Eighth Ward and Fifteenth ward police were immediately an hind, and the murdered man was conveved to his home, where it was reported he died about half past one o'clock this morning. O'Brien was taken to the Fifteenth ward station house and looked up. On his person was found the revolver, and a large dark, which he had concealed in the leg of his boot.
